

THE VIENNA RECORD

Volume X, No. 6

A bi-monthly newsletter of the Town of Vienna, Maine

December 2006/January 2007

MESSAGE FROM THE SELECTMEN

To the residents and friends of Vienna:

The selectmen sent out a special edition of the newsletter before the election recommending a No vote on Question #1. We also felt it was important to let people know that our SAD #9 School Board had passed a resolution against it. We honestly thought this was no different than recommending a dollar amount or yes or no vote in our budget warrant for town meeting. We felt that a Yes vote on #1 would adversely affect our town budget.

We did hear from two people in town who thought that the newsletter was an inappropriate use of tax payer's money. Therefore, the three selectmen have paid for the special edition with our own money.

Selectmen's Meeting Minutes

September 5, 2006

1) Minutes of last meeting read and accepted.

- 2) Road Commissioner Linwood Meader, Jr. brought a price quote from Morton Salt for the road salt - $55.80 per ton delivered. Last year we used 225 tons.
- 3) Someone called from New Sharon expressing his concerns about the "guard rail" system on the big culvert on Tower Road. Junior will call DOT and get someone to look at it and give us alternative ideas.
- 4) Bids were opened for the retired town boat trailer. This trailer is being sold for parts only. The winning bid was $100.50 from Steve Lilley.
- 5) The selectmen signed a new three year contract with Scott Laliberte and Jamie Betit of Riverside Disposal in Augusta for the town's waste removal. The terms of the contract are:
2006-2007 - $31, 500
2007-2008 - $31, 500
2008-2009 - $32, 445
 - a. Scott would like to set up a meeting, probably in January, with the selectmen and the Merry Dumpsters to discuss e-waste, i.e. computer monitors, TVs, florescent light bulbs, etc. and the latest rules and regulations.
- 6) Warrant #17 was completed

Strength in Numbers: Support Vienna's Local Economy

Vienna has a vibrant and diverse business community. The Mt Vernon/Vienna Business Guild (MVBG) is a coalition of these locally owned, independent businesses and community members working together to further develop the economic vitality of Vienna and Mt. Vernon while enhancing and preserving their unique character.

The MVBG is in the process of updating its highly popular Mt. Vernon/Vienna Business Directory which was last published in the summer of 2004 and is free to residents and friends of Vienna. This directory is not only a great way to promote local businesses but will help Vienna resident's become aware of opportunities to buy products and services locally.

To be included in the upcoming directory and to become a member of the guild, area businesses should send their business contact information and a short description of your product or service to Becky Hooper at 54 Egypt Pond Road, Vienna. (A business card is a great way to get your information to Becky with little effort). If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact Becky at 293-3163 or bhoop54@fairpoint.net.

Becky will be organizing a meeting of area businesses to discuss the directory and to give everyone an opportunity to make a donation to defray the printing costs.

Help our community to prosper and contribute to a diverse, healthy and stable local economy.

Vienna Planning Board is Looking for a New Member

Creston Gaither, Secretary of the Vienna Planning Board reports that the planning board has a vacancy.

The planning board administers the Town's land use ordinances—subdivision, shoreland zoning, etc. The board normally meets once a month (in the evening) and makes perhaps one or two site visits during the average month (this varies with the seasons). Attendance would be important; knowledge of one or more aspects of land use (ecology, the law, building and development trades, etc) would be helpful.

Current members are Bob Bassett, Nanou Laliberte, Creston Gaither, Waine Whittier, and Alan Williams. Muffy Floyd has resigned, leaving the alternate position open. The alternate member can only vote when designated to replace a full member in that member's absence but can join in all the discussions, etc.

Anyone wishing to volunteer should contact the selectmen.

Save Money on Dog Licence

According to Vienna Town Clerk, Connie Simth, if you licence your dog before February 1st you can avoid late fees. The cost to license your dog is $6.00 for a neutered or spayed dog and $10.00 for those that are not neutered or spayed. January 31, 2007 is the LAST DAY to license your dog without a penalty. Late fees will be attached beginning Feb. 1, 2007.

Aquaculture: Around the World and in Maine

Aquaculture: Around the World and in Maine” is a look at aquaculture in Maine and how it fits into a world and historical context. The presentation designed by Mr. Pietrak of the Maine Aquaculture Association looks at the long history of aquaculture and the more recent global impact of aquaculture on the world and US seafood supply. Using this as a background the presentation then looks at the impact of aquaculture on Maine and examines the diversity of aquaculture operations in the state. Finally, it looks at current regulations and policy on aquaculture and answers some common questions and misconceptions about salmon aquaculture. In describing his presentation Mike was quoted as saying, “I hope to inform the public about aquaculture in Maine, while putting it in a global and historical context.”

Mike Pietrak has been the Project Manager for the Maine Aquaculture Association for the past three years. While working for the association, he has overseen the development of the Containment Management System or CMS, a program designed to minimize the risk of farmed salmon escaping into the wild. The CMS was developed jointly by the salmon aquaculture industry, environmental organizations, and state and federal regulators and is now a required part of the state discharge permit. Some of Mike’s other projects include conducting field trials on various marking techniques, developing oyster inventory techniques, public education presentations and assisting Maine’s aquaculturalists with the many challenges they face. Prior to working for the Maine Aquaculture Association, Mike completed his Masters degree in Marine Biology at the University of Maine, which focused on control of sea lice on farmed salmon populations.

If you have any questions or would like to discuss scheduling a talk please feel free to contact Mike Pietrak at 207-622-0136 or mpietrak@att.net

Winter Time Healthy Eating Tips

By Betsy Bransky

Hot off the press from Move More. Here are a few good ideas for healthy eating during the fall and winter months. They work well in the spring and summer, too.

Eat more fruits and vegetables! A recent study showed that every extra fruit or vegetable eaten daily could cut the risk of heart disease by four percent. People in the US currently eat only an average of 3 fruits and vegetables per day. We all know that fruits and vegetables are good for us, but how do we squeeze more of them into our daily diet?

- 1. Stock smart. Stock your pantry with frozen vegetables. They can be as nutritious as fresh veggies because they're picked at their peak, when they are the most nutrient-rich. Frozen vegetables are flash-frozen, which seals in the nutrients until the veggies are thawed.
- 2. Make a better bowl. Add vegetables, such as carrots, peas, chopped spinach, or beans, to every soup you make.
- 3. Dress it up. Garnish a cheese pizza with mushrooms, peppers, spinach, and broccoli.
- 4. Simplify salad. For an instant, perfectly dressed salad, fill a plastic storage bag with pre-washed, pre-cut romaine lettuce or mixed greens, add a tablespoon of olive oil and a splash of lemon juice or balsamic vinegar, and shake.
- 5. Be prepared. Keep your kitchen stocked with vegetables that keep well, such as carrots, celery, onions, cucumbers, squash, and garlic. That way, you'll always have produce on hand even when it's tough to get to the store for more perishable items.
- 6. Make it quick. To save time, buy pre-cut vegetables.

7. Snack safely. Put raw vegetables out on a plate while you're making dinner so you can snack on them instead of higher-calorie temptations such as chips or other starchy foods.

8. Let off steam. Lightly steam vegetables in a stovetop or microwave steamer for 3 to 5 minutes, until the color turns brighter (this is the point at which they're most nutritious). Then eat the crisp-tender vegetables either hot with the meal or cold as a snack.

9. Make soup an entrée. Add frozen stir-fry vegetables to canned chicken broth and heat for about 5 minutes for a quick, nutritious soup. Add soy sauce or miso paste for an Asian flavor.

Avoid snacking while bored, tired, or angry. Do you tend to eat when you're in these situations? If so, make a list of other things you can do in those instances, and post it on your refrigerator. Your list may include calling a friend, taking your dog for a walk, knitting, organizing your photos, or spending time on an old or new hobby. If you're reaching for food because you're physically hungry: eat fresh, tasty foods and enjoy!

Q. What is a Comprehensive Plan?

A. A document of how and where we want Vienna to grow and change. It is built on the previous plan with up-dated information.

Maine towns and cities began writing comprehensive plans in 1918 to help direct growth. As populations grew, formally rural towns sometimes began to see growth they had no way to handle. They began to see taxes rise, ponds deteriorate, roads become congested, and the rural character of their towns slip away. Comprehensive plans created a way to, not only plan for that growth, but ensure that decisions were not made arbitrarily, unfairly, or without attention to documented needs.
